Road House Closed By Sheriff Walker Following Murder

The Roadside Inn, located east of Frankfort on the Lincoln Highway on the line of Will and Cook Counties, operated by Tony Augustino, well known labor leader of Chicago Heights and Joliet, was the scene of a murder early Friday morning, when Frank Marjie, said by the police to have been a New York city gunman, was shot and killed by a jealous rival.

It was about 2:30 o'clock Friday morning when between 35 and 40 persons were in the dining room of the Inn that the murder took place. The slain gunman in company with two other men and two women was sitting at a table which was near the orchestra stand and not far from a doorway which opened into the dining room from the bar. Marjie was sitting with his back to this door.

Slayer Escapes in Uproar

His slayer came in thru the door leading from the bar, his hat pulled down low over his face and his hands in his pockets. Reaching the table he seized Marjie by the coat lapels and pulled him out of his chair.

Before Marjie could defend himself his assailant struck him a blow over the head with a revolver and then reversing the weapon pumped five bullets into Marjie's defenseless body.

As Marjie fell his slayer turned and walked quietly out of the room. Not a word was spoken by the slayer before or after the shooting.

The entire affair only lasted a few seconds and was over so quickly that the on lookers had no chance to interfere had they wanted to do so.

Soon as the slayer had left the room the place was in an uproar. The limp body of Marjie was carried out into an auto and he was rushed to the hospital in Chicago Heights, but was dead when the institution was reached.

Will County Not Notified

The affair was not reported to the Will County authorities altho the roadhouse is located in Will County. The Cook County authorities were the first to learn of the murder and investigators from the state's attorney's office were on the scene Friday. They found that five girls were in the roadhouse at the time of the shooting. Beatrice Wilson of Chicago was said to be the woman in the case. Upon being questioned she admitted that she had been keeping company with Marjie, but lately had broken up with him and was going with George Putzino also of Chicago Heights. Thru admissions made by this woman the investigators learned that Putzino was the alleged slayer. It is said that jealousy was the cause of the murder. Putzino escaped after the shooting.

When the Will County authorities learned of the affair they got busy and arrested the five girls and brought them to the county jail at Joliet under formal charges of disorderly conduct. The girls in question were held, not as accomplices of the slayer, but as material witnesses.

They are: Betty Smith, Lillian Powell, Birdie LaGai, cabaret entertainers of the Roadside Inn and Pauline Marshall and Beatrice Wilson who were at the table when Marjie was shot.

After these girls were taken to the county jail, Tony Augustino appeared and furnished $500 bond for each of the five girls.

Forgot to Call Sheriff

Tony Augustino told Sheriff John Walker of Will County that he had intended to call him the same morning of the shooting, but that he was so excited he forgot to do so. He claimed he did not know anything about the shooting as he was out of the room looking after a lighting plant, and when he returned to the dining room he found everybody in an uproar. He said his failure to notify the Will County authorities was

SOME THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT YOUR DRUGGIST

Some time ago a New England paper started the question "What is the most difficult and trying profession?" The community decided it was the druggists' profession. The question was put to George McDuff, secretary of the New Orleans Druggists' Association. He admits the fairness of the decision.

"Your druggist is more than a merchant," he says.

Druggist Professional Man.

"Did you know that your druggist is a professional man, a member of one of the oldest of professions, equal in standing to medicine? He is and he has to be, to be a druggist. He has a professional education in pharmacy, chemistry, materia-medica, pharmacology, pharmacognosy, toxicology, therapeutics and the allied sciences.

"He studies in the same classes, on the same footing with medical students. In most states, to obtain his license to practice he must have his college degree, plus from two to four years of practical work, and, in addition, must pass a state board examination. All of these precautions are taken by the state to assure his competency before he is permitted to practice. Pharmacy is too important, too vital to the public not to be safe-guarded by the state.

"Did you know that he is an ethical man, bound by the code of ethics of his profession, a code as strict and sacred as that of the physician? He is, and he abides by that code, which is fortunate for many families. That code binds him to loyalty to his profession; to use only pure and reputable drugs; to protect the lives and the health of his customers; to give medicine to those in need, even without pay, and to keep confidential the things which come to his knowledge through his professional work.

And your druggist knows more about you than you are aware of. He knows nearly as much of your private life as your physician does. He knows the illness from which any member of your family is suffering. He knows many things, and he keeps his mouth shut.

Is Co-Worker With Physician

"Did you know that your druggist is a co-worker with your physician, that if the druggist fails in his duty, or is dishonest, your physician's work is in vain? In the eyes of the law your druggist would be equally responsible with your physician if you died from a mistake in a prescription, even if the physician prescribed the dose and substance. Your druggist is compelled to know the dose of every drug, and of every poisonous combination that may result from the mixing of two or more drugs in a prescription. That responsibility rests upon the druggist.

"Did you know that your druggist is compelled to keep the longest hours of any profession or trade? You, the public, force him to do so. The eight-hour day is a myth to him, something heard of but never experienced.

The average druggist works a fifteen-hour day. He opens in the early morning, and he is open late at night, long after all other stores are closed. Sundays and holidays are all alike to him. The drug store must remain open. The public demands it. Even in the wee small hours of the morning after the store has closed, if a member of your family becomes sick you do not hesitate to awaken the druggist to secure medicine. He expects it as part of the duties of his profession. He has less time for pleasure, recreation and family life than the members of any other profession.

"Your druggist is more than a merchant, aye, indeed, he is a professional man, an ethical man, a friend in need and a citizen deserving the co-operation and support of the neighborhood which he serves. Stop a moment and consider the druggist. Then give him a square deal."

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

PRACTICE PATIENCE

IT OUGHT to be impressed upon all of us, whether young or old, that patience is one of the higher attributes of good breeding and gentility.

No person, however accomplished he may be, can continue to hold the respect of others if he is given to frequent outbursts of ill-humor.

Patience, it is generally conceded, is ennobling. It builds character, courage, thoughtfulness and friendliness. It never consciously ruffles another.

It is a subject about which in the present day probably nothing has been rightly spoken or written. We like to see its manifestation in others, but balk at its use ourselves when we are suddenly overwhelmed by a stress of passion which sweeps us off our feet and loosens an unruly tongue.

Poor, little, inconsistent mortals that we are, swept hither and thither by adverse forces, we have at least the courage sometimes to commend others for their good deeds. But through some imperfection in our makeup, or laxity of spiritual strength, we fail to emulate their worthy examples.

For some undiscovered reason we seemingly prefer the gale and the snarling sea to the calm and quiet harbor. We often elect to rush into storm rather than to enjoy the quietude of our own friendly home.

We are so overwrought, so mentally mulish, that we are unable to compose ourselves or commune intimately with reason.

We risk our social position and good name by a stinging quip or an angry glare, caring not how deeply we may hurt our friends or injure ourselves.

Failure to practice patience in the home has often robbed the inmates of

YOUR CLOTHES

CLOTHES do not make the man; but they advertise him. If they are good clothes he is well advertised. If they are sloppy clothes he is badly advertised.

If you are rich you can afford to neglect your personal appearance. If you are poor you cannot.

Clothes are as much a part of a man's business equipment as the square and triangle are a part of the equipment of the draughtsman.

An equitable income tax would make an allowance for a man's clothes on the ground that they were a business adjunct as well as a protection.

THE UNSOUGHT

By GRACE E. HALL

SHE sits alone beside a dying fire, And sees her hopes to fleecy ashes go;

Bids sad farewell to feminine desire For love and praise that other women know;

The baby head she visions on her breast Is but a sickening phantom, like the rest;

The little home she one-time planned, Is fled,

And mourned in silence, like the sacred dead.

She sees her idol as in years long past She saw him, towering high among his kind;

In agony she sees him choose at last A painted doll, with neither heart nor mind;

Beholds his home, where children are unknown, And knows his hopes, like hers, have sadly flown.

In secret she has dared to call his name, To clasp him to her breast with ardent word,

Has e'en expressed, without a blush of shame, The burning love no other ears have heard;

Has kissed the lips that only smiled, one day, And left her to her dreams—and ashes gray.

Has Anyone Laughed At You Because—

By ETHEL R. PEYSER

You Always Take Work Home Over Holidays or Week-Ends?

Maybe here the laughter has a good right to laugh. Maybe he hasn't. If you take your work home because there is no other way to keep your job, that is one thing. But usually you take it home because you haven't systematized your work enough in the shop to free you. Then, too, you are safe if you take work home because it does free you for other work during the working day. You perhaps feel that you can help personally more if you are free in the office or that you can get more air or lunch longer. There are mixed good and bad reasons for taking work home. However, they are mostly bad.

SO Your get-away is: If you get stale on your job, don't blame the job. If you don't get stale on the job your home work is only making you one-sided. Choose!

KLAN EMPEROR'S LAWYER SLAIN

Slaying at Atlanta, Ga., Comes From Rivalry Over Offices.

COURT FEUD BRINGS TRAGEDY

Atlanta, Ga.—William S. Coburn, attorney for the Simmons faction of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, and prominent figure in a series of sensational events involving that organization, was shot four times and almost instantly killed while he sat in his office in the Atlanta Trust company building.

Phillip E. Fox, publicity representative for the imperial palace and editor of "The Knight Hawk," official organ of the Evans faction, did the shooting. He is in jail, accused of murder. Col. William J. Simmons, emperor, and H. W. Evans, imperial wizard, are fighting for control of the Klan. Fox declared he was glad Col. Coburn was dead.

"I may hang for this, but he was planning to ruin me and I had just as soon be hanged as for him to have ruined me."

Mrs. M. I. Holbrook, stenographer for Coburn, and Mrs. Oscar Heyman, a client, witnessed the shooting.

Fox came to Coburn's office shortly after 4 o'clock, and, finding Coburn engaged in conversation with W. T. Roger, said to be an attaché of the office of Henry J. Norton, head of Atlanta Klan No. 1, stated that he would return in about an hour, "when we can talk business in private," according to Mrs. Holbrook.

"He had just about had time to reach the hall and turn around when he re-entered the office and, without a word, began firing at Mr. Coburn, who sat at his desk," said Mrs. Holbrook.

"There were four or five shots. Mr. Coburn screamed after each one. After the last shot Fox left the office, throwing his gun to the floor as he passed through the door. Mr. Coburn was lying on the floor, screaming, and blood was spurting from a wound in his face. Mrs. Heyman and myself ran down the hall to the office of the Fulton Finance company."

Alberta Votes Wet in Both Country and the Cities

Winnipeg, Man.—Following in the steps of Manitoba on the liquor question, the province of Alberta voted wet—in favor of government control of the sale of liquor, as against the present dry status of the province. The prohibition vote from the country districts was in favor of liquor control by the government. The cities went largely the same way. Alberta makes the fourth province in Canada to vote wet, Quebec, British Columbia and Manitoba being the other three.

The crowd, angered by the bread and food prices, went into this quarter, peopled by speculators, small merchants and exchange brokers, to get revenge. While the police looked on the workers systematically plundered the food shops and raided private flats.

Important to All Women Readers of This Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition.

Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and maybe despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by parcel post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

American Farm Bureau

The photograph shows the senior yearling Holstein heifer, grand champion at Rock county and champion at six fairs—W. G. Miles, grand champion Shropshire ewe—Marvin Helgeson and champion calf, and J. C. Nesbit, live stock agent of the Rock county farm bureau.

Farm bureau members of Rock county, Wisconsin, have a slogan—"Rock County First!"

To be first in agriculture is the objective of the 4,000 farmers of this southern Wisconsin county, having one of the largest farm bureau memberships in the United States. Through bureau co-operation Rock county farmers put over a unique venture in the exhibiting of farm products on a circuit of fairs and interstate dairy expositions.

At the recent Wisconsin state fair—"the dairy classic of the West"—Rock county, as a result of this co-operative effort, backed by the bureau, won the county sweepstakes championship awarded to the county scoring the most premium awards and won first prize on the cattle exhibit determined by the number of ribbons won. The county show herd plan of exhibiting live stock has been successfully carried out in Rock county.

Bureau Put Over Project.
Practical farmers oftentimes do not have the time, nor can they spare the money to properly fit, train and exhibit stock beyond their local fairs. The Rock county farm bureau put over a project of collecting 12 carloads of cattle, swine and sheep from the county to be shown under the county's name. There were 75 head of cattle in the exhibit, the largest collection of blooded stock ever sent out of any one county on a fair circuit.

The bureau employed J. C. Nesbit, a master showman and headman, to have full charge of the exhibit. A fund was created to bring in the stock a month before the show season for fitting and training. The plan was backed by the newspapers and business interests of the county, who believe in the farm bureau ideas of development.

All Premiums Pooled.
The county was combed for show stock, the breed associations backing the project. All premiums won were pooled to pay expenses and provide a fund for future development work. It was a county effort to put blue ribbons and championships on the stock from practical farms, Rock county not having a millionaire agriculturist within its boundaries. The climax exhibit was at the Wisconsin state fair, and the county won $5,534 in premium money, including five championships on cattle. A part of the exhibit will be shown at the Chicago International Live Stock exposition.

Organization Formed.
An organization has been set up, to handle farm business on a county-wide co-operative plan. J. C. Nesbit, who handled the show herds, is the county live stock agent, engaged by the bureau to handle all sales of stock with a policy of protecting both the buyer and seller. All farm business from that of the beekeepers' association to grains, live stock and crop development, is handled through the farm bureau. The executive committee of the bureau meets with an advisory committee selected from the county, and at these conferences the county-wide projects are considered, passed upon and put through.

HONOR FOR JOHNNY DAWSON
Cherokee County, Iowa, Youth Wins Championship With Steer at Sioux City.

Winning the championship in the second largest Baby Beef club in the world is the honor that has come to Johnny Dawson of Washita, Iowa—Cherokee county.

His Angus steer was the outstanding animal of two hundred and fourteen head shown at the recent Interstate fair of Sioux City.

Cherokee county, according to Glenn A. Ellis, county agent, has done consistent Baby Beef club work for several years and has won two firsts and a second at Sioux City in the last four years in addition to the winnings this year.

TUBERCULOSIS LAW VIOLATED
Farm Advisers and Others Interested Favor Apprehension of Those Disregarding Rules.

TO REDUCE FARE TO ANNUAL CONVENTION
"Certificate Plan" Will Be in Effect Again This Year

Arrangements have been made with the railroads for reduced round trip passenger fares applying from all points in the United States to Chicago, for the annual convention of the A. F. B. F. to be held December 10-11 inclusive.

The "certificate plan" used for the past two years will be in effect again this year and in this connection a few words of warning are issued.

In order to secure the reduced fare into Chicago, a certificate must be requested at the time the ticket is bought.

Last year many people forgot to ask for a certificate at the time they bought their ticket, and these people lost the reduced fare privilege. Beside this, failure to secure certificate jeopardizes the granting of the special rate to all as a minimum of 250 certificates are necessary to secure the reduced rates.

Dates on which certificates may be secured with purchase of tickets are for the central states, Dec. 4 to 10 inclusive. In Colorado, Idaho, Montana, New Mexico and Wyoming, Dec. 3 to 9, and from Arizona, California, Nevada, Oregon and Washington, Dec. 1 to 7. In all cases the rate for the return trip is good until Dec. 14.

This generous provision allows anyone to reach Chicago in time to see most of the International Live Stock exposition and be here the following week for the convention. But those from the central states are urged to get their certificates and not come in on the special excursion rate in effect to the International Live Stock exposition, which rate does not permit a stop-over for the A. F. B. F. convention.

PROMOTION FOR H. R. KIBLER
Assistant Director of Department of Information Placed in Charge by Bradfute.

O. E. Bradfute, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, accepted the resignation of Samuel R. Guard as director of the department of information on October 15. Mr. Guard has been in charge of the publicity work of the farm bureau since January 3, 1921.

H. R. Kibler, who has been assistant director of the department of information since March 15, 1921, has been placed in charge of the department by President Bradfute.

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 11

SOME MISSIONARY TEACHINGS OF THE PSALMS

LESSON TEXT—Ps. 47, 67, 100.

GOLDEN TEXT—"Let the people praise Thee, O God, let all the people praise Thee."—Ps. 67:3.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Everybody Praising God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Everybody Serving God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—All Nations Called to Serve Jehovah.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Missionary Hymns of the Old Testament.

The Jewish people were called to be missionaries to the other nations. The psalter, their hymn book, is saturated with the spirit of God's grace to the world. Its dominant note is the call to come back to God.

I. A Call to Recognize God's Power (Ps. 47).

Man's first sin was to cast off God. Such abyssal darkness followed that the race has gone on in ignorance of its Creator and Benefactor. The first and primary need of the missionary is to get the heathen to know God. They must come to know Him not only as a mighty King, but as a personal, tender-hearted being, looking out over the world with compassion, desiring to save and bless man, His only creature in His image and likeness. Oh, that the heathen knew God as their true and great King whose mighty power He desires to use in salvation and blessing to all! Let us make this known to the ends of the earth!

II. A Call for the Nations to Return to God (Ps. 67).

The central theme of this psalm is the universal diffusion of God's grace. The order of thought in this psalm is that which shall be carried out by the Lord in the completion of His work of grace in the world.

1. God's Blessing Upon Israel (vv. 1, 2). This blessing is necessary in order that Israel may be fitted to make known God's way to the nations. This grace will be poured out upon Israel in the full coming of Pentecost. When this grace is poured out there will be such missionary activity as has hitherto been unknown. When Israel, like her national representative Paul, shall go forth in such power of the Holy Spirit in witnessing for Christ, truly nations shall be born in a day. That which shall be manifested by Israel for their God-appointed task is needed by the church in her witnessing. She needs the Spirit of God to fit her to preach the gospel to the heathen.

2. The Conversion of the Heathen (vv. 3-5). Thanksgiving will be given for salvation offered and accepted. Not only this, but there will be rejoicing in the experience of salvation. They will rejoice in the fact now that the great and righteous God rules the earth. The new-born soul rejoices in knowing that a dispensation of justice tempered with mercy has been ushered in. What gladness will be in the hearts of men in the day when Christ reigns!

3. Restoration of Blessings Upon the Earth (vv. 6, 7). When man cast off God a curse was placed upon the earth which limited its fruitfulness. Immediately upon man's return to God this curse will pass away from the earth. The supreme obstacle to prosperity is man's rebellion against God. Let the nations return to God and He will send His blessing upon them. The only way to bring back peace and prosperity is by the preaching of the gospel. Man must be called back to God. The supreme need of the world is not a league of nations, but a return to God; because God will remain separate from the nations as long as they are in rebellion against Him.

III. A Call to Recognize the Goodness of God (Ps. 100).

Praise should go "up to God because He is God. Being God He created us, sustains us and saves us. For His unchanging mercy and goodness praise should be continually ascribed to Him.

What Life Consists Of.
"A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of things which he possesseth." In these words Jesus strikes at the popular error of all ages—the belief that life consists in things. For nothing are we under deeper obligation to Christianity than for this, that it corrects our easy views of life. Since the first man started heavenward, there have been two conflicting ideals of life; one teaches that life's values are in the things we get and keep; the other holds that the chief end of man is to develop his highest powers, to live in fear of that which is beneath him, and in reverence for that which is above him.—Rev. G. C. Albertson, D. D.

Neglected Children.
It is often difficult to tell which are more neglected—the children of the very rich or the children of the very poor.—Kenneth D. Miller.

Love for the Home.
The first indication of domestic happiness is the love of one's home.—Montlosier.

Breaks or Hardens the Heart.
Contact with the world either breaks or hardens the heart.—Chamfort.

BUILD CAVES UNDER HOMES NATIVES ARE TOO POLITE

Arabians Construct Underground Chambers in the Holy City of Nejeff—Refuge for Criminals.

Out in the Arabian desert, five days by caravan from Bagdad, stands the holy city of Nejeff, and in the whole of the town of almost 100,000 persons there is hardly a house with windows. Also, beneath many homes are immense caves, hewn out of the limestone that underlies the desert round about. Many of these caves are built one room below the other, some of the lower apartments being 100 feet below the street level.

These underground chambers are reached by winding stairways, also hewn from the rock. They were originally built to provide a refuge from the intense heat of midsummer, but in many instances they have now become a refuge for Arab criminals and robbers who dwell at Nejeff and prey on the caravans of Mecca pilgrims.

Nejeff itself is a great pilgrim city, and each year thousands of devotees from Persia and Turkestan make the journey to the holy Nejeff, bringing with them the salted and dried bodies of their dead for burial in sacred soil outside the city walls. Here a vast city of tombs has grown up.—Detroit News.

People like to spend money. That is chiefly how other people become rich.

Related to the weakness which induces the Papuan native to lie in order to humor the European is the courtesy which he often displays on the most unexpected occasions.

You may tell the same story two or three times to a Papuan, but he will laugh just as heartily or express just the same astonishment the last time as the first. No hint will escape him that he has heard the story before. And even in the crimes which he not infrequently commits—mostly crimes of violence—he is not always forgetful of the rules of politeness.

"He wanted me to carry him across the water," said a prisoner who was charged with murdering another native whom he had met and done to death on the bank of a river, "but he looked very heavy. Of course I could not be so rude as to refuse to carry him, so I thought that the best way out of the difficulty was to kill him."

Courteous, too, was the explanation given to me by some natives of the mountains inland of Rigo, who were charged with attacking a police patrol. "We had never seen policemen before," they said, "and we did not know what they were. If we had thought for a moment," they added, "that you attached any importance to these persons, we certainly would not have thrown spears at them. We did not think that they were any good."—Stead's Review, Melbourne.

Ford Four-Door Sedan

$685 down, fully equipped.

Inside and out, the new Ford Four-door Sedan shows improvements of far more than usual importance.

It is lower and sturdier in appearance. New cowl, hood, radiator and apron add size and finish to the front. Sun visor, and wide, well-finished aluminum doors with handles perfect the design of the body.

The lasting lustre of the exterior finish is equalled in richness by the soft brown shades of the silk window curtains and the deep broadcloth upholstery.

Quite a few people have signed up with the Grand Electric Co. for house wiring. The more contracts these people have the sooner they can compel the setting of the poles. It seems as if a certain company must have a number of contracts in order that the Public Service may be forced to set the poles. The mayor and the council have done all they can, it is up to the people now.

The pre-Halloween ghost party at the Methodist church was a great success. Some very fleshy ghosts were present and Mama is missing some of her best sheets. A ghostly good time was reported.

The Hard time party of the young folk society of Christ Lutheran church was attended by 50 shabbily dressed young men and ladies. Games of various kinds were played and sad to say, a box of sandwiches and a cake walked over to the depot to be devoured there and a horseless buggy carried itself up the steps and landed noiselessly on the landing effectively blocking the exit. Even Pete Dallman hadn't noticed it—he was so busy looking for the thing which made the cake raise!

Many other pranks were played most of them only doing it for devilment. Pete Ott is still looking for some of his things and Kans rielenshouse has threatened to sue everyone for taking his wagon up the road and dumping it in the ditch.

Easy to Banish All Trouble.
Half your troubles vanish the moment you face them, and the other half disappear if you continue to face them.—Boston Transcript.

That is, he can unless the pipe dream comes to a sudden end. For one thing the German courts are ruling that the theory "a mark is a mark" doesn't go,—that a debtor has to give back a fair equivalent for what he received and that present paper marks worth 120,000 to the dollar are not the fair equivalent of former gold marks at four to the dollar.

Furthermore all pipe dreams are too good to be true. They are not what they seem. The smoke is wearing off in Germany and they are coming down to earth with a dull thud. It is beginning to be realized that the net result of a paper money nightmare is that producers are robbed and speculators enriched. Farmers are unable to raise prices for their products fast enough to keep up with the falling purchasing power of unsound money. The value of such money slips away from them like a handful of dry sand. It brings back to them less in purchases than they gave of their products to get it.

The farmer as a result can't make ends meet and when he gets into difficulties the unsound money speculator steps in and buys up mortgaged farm lands cheap—and thus it is mostly the speculator who profits by paying off the mortgages with currency worth less than a dozen eggs,—unless the courts stop him.

More than that, if farm mortgage debt can be paid off with almost worthless currency, so can corporations pay off their bonded debt,—the bonds in which many a farmer's savings, and many a widow's and orphan's inheritance, are invested.

Before the war, with marks worth 24 cents gold, the deposits of the thirty in German savings banks were worth over five billion dollars. Today, although these deposits have multiplied many fold in terms of marks, their real value is only about half a million dollars gold. That is what a "loose money" plan does for common folks.

Pipe dreams are wonderful while they last—but shattered health, misery and despair are the final penalty. The ones who profit are the dope sellers. Unsound money is a pipe dream—and the penalty is economic ruin, misery and despair for the majority. The ones who profit are the speculators.

"JUST LIKE DADDY," AN ECONOMIC FORCE

By J. H. PUELICHER
President the American Bankers Association.

J. H. Puelicher

"Like Daddy"—these two words, that express the imitative nature of children, occur to me as I think of our parental responsibilities in respect to both the thriftiness and the thriftlessness of our boys and girls. The accent belongs on both aspects of the case, for we have yet to find a person who is the perfect example of thrift. Even Ben Franklin admitted his lack of attainment after his years of self-admonishment and self-criticism—and his temptations were not so great as those of today. Every reader will admit his deficiency in thrift. So will I. And what of our children? Will they copy us? Will their attitude toward thrift be "like Daddy's"? Will it be thrifty or thriftless?

It will at least be largely influenced by it. The thrift of the next generation is in the hands of the present. If our children are "out of hand" on their habits, whom have we to blame but ourselves?

Remember this: The next generation will be subject to the same laws of economics, the same rules of success, the same principles of happiness as we are today. A habit of thrift is the best possible characteristic to mould into our children. During their habit-forming years, whatever the value will be apparent in their maturity, whatever the helm of large enterprise, the more humble.

The basic principle in the life of our nation and its system of producing and exchanging commodities. Thrift is always both of social and of individual advantage. Each day finds us expanding both in breadth and in depth of our resources of enjoyment and our opportunities for service as we practice thrift.

But how shall we bring about habits of thrift? Is there any other way than by teaching, whether by direct precept or by the unconscious example of our own habits, continually impressing themselves on the receptive minds of the young?

"Like Daddy" expresses one of the most powerful social and economic forces there is.

The Brown Mouse

By HERBERT QUICK

(Copyright by The Bobbs-Merrill Company)

"A BROWN MOUSE"

SYNOPSIS—Jennie Woodruff refuses to marry Jim Irwin, young farm hand, because of his financial condition and poor prospects. He is intellectually above his station, and has advanced ideas concerning the possibilities of school teaching and farming, for which he is ridiculed by many. In short, Jim is an off ox. He flocks by himself and reads books and has a philosophy of his own. But there are latent powers in him unsuspected even by himself and Opportunity comes knocking at his door. Jim is nominated for school teacher, as a joke.

The president followed usage when he said: "If there's no objection, it will be so ordered. Prepare the ballots for a vote on the election of teacher, Mr. Secretary."

There was no surprise in view of the nomination of Jim Irwin by the blarneying Bonner when the Secretary smoothed out the first ballot, and read: "James E. Irwin, one." But when the next slip came forth, "James E. Irwin, two," the board of directors of the Woodruff Independent district were stunned at the slowly dawning knowledge that they had made an election! Before they had rallied, the secretary drew from the box the third and last ballot, and read, "James E. Irwin, three."

President Bronson choked as he announced the result—choked and stammered, and made very hard weather of it, but he went through with the motion, as we all run in our grooves.

"The ballot having shown the unanimous election of James E. Irwin, I declare him elected."

He dropped into his chair, while the secretary, a very methodical man, drew from his portfolio a contract duly drawn up save the name and signature. This he calmly filled out, and passed over to the president, pointing to the dotted line. Mr. Bronson would have signed his own death-warrant at that moment, not to mention a perfectly legal document, and signed with Peterson and Bonner looking on stonily. The secretary signed and showed the contract over to Jim Irwin.

"Sign there," he said. Jim looked it over, saw the other signatures, and felt an impulse to dodge the whole thing. Then he thought of Jennie Woodruff's "Humph!"—and he signed!

"Move we adjourn," said Peterson. "No 'bjection 'tis so ordered!" said Mr. Bronson.

The secretary and Jim went out, while the directors waited.

"What the Billy—" began Bonner, and finished lamely! "What for did you vote for the dub, Ez?"

"I voted for him," replied Bronson, "because he fought for my boy this afternoon. I didn't want it stuck into him too hard. I wanted him to have one vote."

"An' I wanted him to have wan vote, too," said Bonner. "I thought meself the only dang fool on the board—an' he made a spache that alrned wan vote—but f'r the love of hivin, that dub f'r a teacher! What come over you, Haakon—you voted f'r him, too!"

"Ay wanted him to have one wote, too," said Peterson.

And in this wise, Jim became the teacher in the Woodruff district—all on account of Jennie Woodruff's "Humph!"

CHAPTER III

What Is a Brown Mouse?

Immediately upon the accidental election of Jim Irwin to the position of teacher of the Woodruff school, he developed habits somewhat like a ghost's or a bandit's. That is, he walked of nights and on rainy days.

On fine days, he worked in Colonel Woodruff's fields as of yore. Jim's salary was to be just $360 for nine months' work in the Woodruff school, and he was to find himself—and his mother. Therefore, he had to indulge in his loose habits of night walking and roaming about after hours only, or on holidays and in foul weather.

The Simms family, being from the "mountings" of Tennessee, were rather startled one night, when Jim Irwin, homely, stooped and errandless, silently appeared in their family circle about the front door. They had lived where it was the custom to give a whoop from the big road before one passed through the pail's and up to the house. Otherwise, how was one to know whether the visitor was friend or foe?

From force of habit, Old Man Simms started for his gun-rack at Jim's appearance, but the Lincolnian smile and the low slow speech, so much like his own in some respects, ended that.

"Stranger," said Mr. Simms, after greetings had been exchanged, "you're right welcome, but in my kentry you'd find it dangerous to walk in this way."

"How so?" queried Jim Irwin. "You'd more'n likely get shot up some," replied Mr. Simms, "unless you whooped from the big road."

"I didn't know that," replied Jim. "I'm ignorant of the customs of other countries. Would you rather I'd whoop from the big road—nobody else will."

"I reckon," replied Mr. Simms, "that we all will have to accommodate ourselves to the ways hyeh."

Evidently Jim was the Simms' first caller since they had settled on the little brushy tract whose hills and trees reminded them of their mountains. Low hills, to be sure, with only a footing of rocks where the creek had cut through, and not many trees, but down in the creek bed, with the oaks, elms and box-elders arching overhead, the Simmses could imagine themselves beside some run falling into the French Broad, or the Holston. The creek bed was a withdrawing room in which to retire from the eternal black soil and level cornfields of Iowa.

The soil was so poor, in comparison with those black uplands, that the owner of the old wood-lot could find no renter but it was better than the soil in the mountains, and suited the lonesome Simmses much more than a better farm would have done. They were not of the Iowa people anyhow, not understood, not their equals—they were "pore," and expected to stay "pore"—while the Iowa people all seemed to be either well-to-do, or expecting to become so.

Jim Irwin asked Old Man Simms about the fishing in the creek, and whether there was any duck shooting spring and fall.

"We git right smart of these little panfish," said Mr. Simms, "an' Calista done shot two butterball ducks about 'later-plantin' time."

Calista blushed—but this stranger, so much like themselves, could not see the rosy suffusion. The allusion gave him a chance to look about him at the family. There was a boy of sixteen, a girl—the duck-shooting Calista—younger than Raymond—a girl of eleven, named Virginia, but called Jimmie—and a smaller lad who rejoiced in the name of McGeehee, but was mercifully called Buddy.

Calista squirmed for something to say. "Raymond runs a line o' traps when the fur's prime," she volunteered.

Then came a long talk on traps and trapping, shooting, hunting and the joys of the mountings—during which Jim noted the ignorance and poverty of the Simmses. The clothing of the girls was not decent according to local standards; for while Calista wore a skirt hurriedly slipped on, Jim was quite sure—and not without evidence to support his views—that she had been wearing when he arrived the same regiments now displayed by Jimmie—a pair of ragged blue overalls. Evidently the Simmses were wearing what they had and not what they desired. The father was faded, patched, gray and earthy, and the boys looked better than the rest solely because we expect boys to be torn and patched. Mrs. Simms was invisible except as a gray blur beyond the rain-barrel, in the midst of which her pipe glowed with a regular ebb and flow of embers.

On the next rainy day Jim called again and secured the services of Raymond to help him select seed corn. He was going to teach the school next winter, and he wanted to have a seed-corn frolic the first day, instead of waiting until the last—and you had to get seed corn while it was on the stalk, if you got the best.

No Simms could refuse a favor to the fellow who was so much like themselves, and who was so greatly interested in trapping, hunting and the Tennessee mountains—so Raymond went with Jim, and with Newt Bronson and five more they selected Colonel Woodruff's seed corn for the next year, under the colonel's personal superintendence.

In the evening they looked the grain over on the Woodruff lawn, and the colonel talked about corn and corn selection. They had supper at half past six, and Jennie waited on them—having assisted her mother in the cooking. It was quite a festival.

Jim Irwin was the least conspicuous person in the gathering, but the colonel, who was a seasoned politician, observed that the farm-hand had become a fisher of men, and was angling for the souls of these boys, and their interest in the school. Jim was careful not to flush the covey, but every boy received from the next winter's teacher some confidential hint as to plans, and some suggestion that Jim was relying on the aid and comfort of that particular boy.

Newt Bronson, especially, was leaned on as a strong staff and a very present help in time of trouble. As for Raymond Simms, it was clearly best to leave him alone. All this talk of corn selection and related things was new to him, and he drank it in thirstily. He had an inestimable advantage over Newt in that he was starved, while Newt was surfeited with "advantages" for which he had no use.

"Jennie," said Colonel Woodruff, after the party had broken up, "I'm losing the best hand I ever had, and I've been sorry."

"I'm glad he's leaving you," said Jennie. "He ought to do something except work in the field for wages."

"I've had no idea he could make good as a teacher—and what is there in it if he does?"

"What has he lost if he doesn't?" rejoined Jennie. "And why can't he make good?"

"The school board's against him, for one thing," replied the colonel. "They'll fire him if they get a chance. They're the laughing-stock of the country for hiring him by mistake, and they're irritated. But after seeing him perform tonight, I wonder if he can't make good."

"If he could feel like anything but an underling, he'd succeed," said Jennie.

"That's his heredity," stated the colonel, whose live stock operations were based on heredity. "Jim's a scrub, I suppose; but he acts as if he might turn out to be a Brown Mouse."

"What do you mean, pa," scoffed Jennie—"a Brown Mouse?"

"A fellow in Edinburgh," said the colonel, "crossed the Japanese waltzing mouse with the common white mouse. Jim's peddling father was a waltzing mouse, no good—except to jump from one spot to another for no good reason. Jim's mother is an albino of a woman, with all the color washed out in one way or another. Jim ought to be a mongrel, and I've always considered him one. But the Edinburgh fellow every once in a while got out of his variously-colored, waltzing and albino hybrids, a brown mouse. It wasn't a common house mouse, either, but a wild mouse unlike any he had ever seen. It ran away, and bit and gnawed and raised hob. It was what we breeders call a Mendelian segregation of genetic factors that had been in the waltzers and albinos all the time—their original wild ancestor of the woods and fields. If Jim turns out to be a brown mouse, he may be a bigger man than any of us. Anyhow, I'm for him."

"He'll have to be a big man to make anything out of the job of a country school teacher," said Jennie.

"Any job's as big as the man who holds it down," said the father.

Next day Jim received a letter from Jennie.

"Dear Jim," it ran. "Father says you are sure to have a hard time—the school board's against you, and all that. But he added 'I'm for Jim, anyhow.' I thought you'd like to know this. Also he said, 'Any job's as big as the man who holds it down.' And I believe this also, and I'm for you, too! You are doing wonders even before the school starts in getting the pupils interested in a lot of things, which, while they don't belong to school work, will make them friends of yours. I don't see how this will help you much, but it's a fine thing, and shows your interest in them. Don't be too original. The wheel runs easiest in the beaten track. Yours, Jennie."

Jennie's caution made no impression on Jim—but he put the letter away, and every evening took it out and read the words, "I'm for you, too!" The colonel's dictum, "Any job's as big as the man who holds it down," was an Emersonian truism to Jim. It reduced all jobs to an equality, and it meant equality in intellectual and spiritual development. It didn't mean, for instance, that any job was as good as another in making it possible for a man to marry—and Jennie Woodruff's "Humph!" returned to kill and drag off her "I'm for you, too!"

CHAPTER IV

The First Day of School.

Jim Irwin was full of his Emerson's "Representative Men," and his Carlyle's "French Revolution," and the other old-fashioned, excellent, good literature which did not cost over 25 cents a volume; and he had pored long and with many thrills over the pages of "Matthews' "Getting On in the World." His view of efficiency was that it is the capacity to see opportunity where others overlook it, and make the most of it.

All through his life he had had his own plans for becoming great. And all the time he was bare-footed, ill-clad and dreamed his dreams to the accompaniment of the growl of the plow cutting the roots under the brown furrow-slice, or the whooshing of the milk in the pail. At twenty-eight, he considered these dreams over.

As for this new employment, he saw no great opportunity in it. He went into the small, mean, ill-paid task as a part of the day's work, with no knowledge of the stirring of the nation for a different sort of rural school, and no suspicion that there lay in it any highway to success in life. He rather wondered why he had allowed Jennie's sneer to sting him into the course of action which put him in this new relation to his neighbors.

"Half the kids call him Jim," said Bonner.

"Yes, that is why you were brought here."

"Now don't boast too much," said Yellow-Headed Vulture, "for I am supposed to be far more handsome than either of you."

"I'm a pretty worthwhile object to look upon," said the California Condor.

"You are rare and you are interesting," said King Vulture, "but you're not the king."

"I'm interesting," said the Griffon Vulture, "for though my ways and the ways of the members of my family are the ways of vultures, still we are very much nearer relatives to the eagles than most can boast of, and that is the truth."

"I feed on lambs," said the Lammergeyer or Bearded Vulture, "and my home was in Asia before I was brought to the zoo."

"I guess the lambs weren't sorry to see you go," said King Vulture.

"Probably not," said the Bearded Vulture. "I didn't expect them to give me a party before I left."

"I said to myself upon leaving:

"I am sure the lambs will not shed any tears because I am leaving. And so my going will not make them unhappy."

"Neither will they have to go to any expense on my account. They will not have to give me a farewell dinner and a present as a token of their esteem."

"They will not have to take up a collection among all the lambs so as to get enough to give me a handsome present."

"They will not have to do any of these things. By my rough ways with them they are being saved expense and trouble."

"Yes, I said all this to myself."

"You had quite a talk with yourself, didn't you?" asked King Vulture.

"Quite," said Bearded Vulture. "And I enjoyed it, too."

"It's just as well to enjoy your own conversation when you have to hear yourself talk," said Yellow-Headed Vulture.

"Well," said King Vulture, "I was asked not long ago what I did when I got angry and fought."

"And I've had so many pressing engagements that I haven't answered that question before."

"What pressing engagements did you have?" the Bearded Vulture inquired.

"You might ask," said King Vulture. "In fact, you have already asked. But I cannot tell you what they were because I didn't have any engagements at all."

"I said that because, you know, people are always talking about how busy they are and that they didn't get around to doing this and they didn't get around to doing that, and so I thought I would act in the same way."

"Well, I shall answer the question now, and I hope those who asked it will hear the answer! It would be a pity if they didn't, but I feel sure they will!"

"I fight with my beak. It is the Vulture Family way. The eagles fight with their claws."

"I suppose there are some people who like to know all they can about us. I don't blame them. To my Vulture mind we're interesting, but to some creatures we're horrible in appearance and far from being well liked!"

The Lammergeyer.

Mothers Advise Their Daughters to Rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Keep Them in Health

A Mother's Advice Prevents Operation

Corona, N. Y.—"I had a terrible pain in my left side and had to go to bed every so often. Doctors had told me I must be operated on, but I do not believe in the knife and would rather suffer than go through it. My mother also did not believe in it and she made me take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because it had helped her. It has also helped me for I am better and able to do all my work. I recommend your medicine and give you permission to use my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. J. BUSCH, Jr., 11 S. Railroad Avenue, Corona, N. Y.

A Sickly Child

Mahoningtown, Pa.—"I would like to say a few words about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. About a year ago I thought it would be necessary for me to take my daughter out of school. She was losing weight, was nervous, and when she would come home from school she would drop into a chair and cry, and say, 'Mamma, I don't believe I can go to school another day!' I gave her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now she is a healthy, happy, hearty, strong girl and weighs 120 pounds. She has no difficulty in doing her 'gym' work, and she works at home every night and morning, too. I am a mother who can certainly praise your medicine, and if it will be of any benefit you may use this letter as a reference."

—Mrs. GEORGE E. WHITACRE, 621 W. Madison Ave., Mahoningtown, Pa.

Every girl wants to be healthy and strong, and every mother wants her daughter to do well in school and to enjoy herself at all times.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for young girls just entering womanhood. Mothers may depend upon it. Remember it is prepared from roots and herbs, contains nothing that can injure, and tends to tone up and strengthen the organs concerned, so that they will work in a healthy and normal manner.

For nearly fifty years it has been used by women of all ages, and these women know its great value. Let it help your daughter and yourself.

We accumulate a number of good habits, too; but we don't notice those so much.

CARD TABLE NUMBERS

A pretty set of card table numbers, especially when made by the donor, will please every hostess. Here is a set, made of heavy black paper, cut into three-inch squares and having pictures of girls' heads pasted against the painted numbers. A fine silk cord, supporting a tiny pencil, is fastened through a hole punched in a corner of each card.

FANCY SILK HANDBAGS

Very handsome handbags, in new patterns of figured or brocaded ribbons, will make their recipients happy this Christmas. The envelope bag pictured is made of tapestry ribbon, bordered with black, and the bag below it reveals a richly colored Egyptian design with mock jewels set along the mounting. Both are lined with plain silk, and colors are chosen to suit individual fancy.

FOR DRESSING TABLE

A pair of long skewers, wound with narrow green ribbon, a small mirror, a flat powder puff and two double red silk poppies will make this pretty pair of toilet requisites. The mirror is bound with red ribbon, gathered at the edges. After the skewers have been sewed to place, the poppies are flattened, placed over them and tacked down about the edges.

DAINTY GIFTS FOR GIRLS

On a new-style ribbon sash, lotus blossoms and waves are appliqued, of narrow metal-edged ribbon in two colors, and a collar of yellow organdie, edged with lace, is gayly embroidered with red daisies of silk floss.

Saved and Serving

By REV. H. OSTROM, D. D.
Extension Department, Moody
Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—He took them the same hour of the night and washed their stripes. He set meat before them and rejoiced.
—Acts 16:33-34.

Of whom is this we read? Is it some sacrificing doctor hurrying after midnight to wash the wounds of a patient? Or is it some mother awakened out of her sorely needed sleep to feed the hungry child of her love and care?

A jailer? What? Would a man in charge of a prison under the old Roman government stoop to such a service? A few hours before this man had "thrust Paul and Silas into the inner prison, and made their feet fast in the stocks." But now in the dead of night we find him washing their stripes and setting meat before them. What has occurred? Oh, much!

We must examine the incident and observe the wonder of it. It is not an ordinary one. An earthquake, a reeling earth, and fear of punishment should the prisoners entrusted to his keeping escape, intimidated the callous jailer. But the tumult about him was as nothing to that within him which shook his soul out of the sloth of sin into peace with God. That one hour must have meant more than centuries to him. His soul struggle must have been intense.

What was his first step towards peace? He asked the way to be saved. Let us also start there.

I. "What must I do to be saved?" Why say "must"? Pity the man who so lightly regards his responsibility to God or is so devoid of reverence that concerning his soul's welfare he is content to say "may" or "might." Instead of "must." Pity an age that would tune its thinking to the pitch of mere probability or convenience and thus cheapen the whole procedure of human living and at the same time rate God as a mere mental accommodation to our hazardous do-as-we-please way of living. This jailer was not occupied with schemes of self-advancement or by the thought that the events of the night might mean the loss of his position. He was dealing with greater issues. "What must I do to be saved?"

II. We cannot get away from that stripe-bathing. From blows and cruelty he was turned to ministering and healing. Was it not the act of a saved man? Yes, that is it: the man had been saved. His act was not merely assent, he had come to realize his perishing condition. And he had accepted rescue. "A new creature in Christ Jesus"! It was a real work of grace.

And that meal of victuals! This was walking "in newness of life." It is after believing that a man washes the wounds of, and carries bread to, the preacher. Having been baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus, he proceeds to act in the Jesus-way. It is ever so. Infidels and believers alike affirm that by really believing on Jesus Christ a man's conduct becomes Christ-like.

What was the secret? We have but to inquire who it was that Paul and Silas announced. It was the Lord Jesus Christ. When a sinner believes on the Lord Jesus Christ, by the guarantee of the Almighty he is saved. Unsaved men cannot reckon the immensity of this one act. Consider that this man believed in Jesus—who is Savior; Christ—who is the one who must reign over the earth; Lord—who is master! To him Christ became all.

To us, also, who are believers, Christ is all. We are also "new creatures in Christ Jesus."

About the Bible.

Most people think the Bible was first written exactly as it appears today. But such is not the case. It was originally one continuous piece of text, with no divisions of any kind, no sections, no chapters, no verses, no divisions of words, even, or punctuation. Its divisions into lines to suit the sense was done by Euthalius, of Alexandria, in the last half of the Fifth century. Its divisions into chapters is ascribed to two archbishops, Lanfranc in the Eleventh century and Langton in the Thirteenth, and a cardinal, Hugo de Sancto Caro, about 1250. Rabbi Nathan began the division of the Bible into sections about 1443, and another Hebrew, Athanasius, completed the work in 1801. An English printer, Robert Stephens, introduced the present division into verses, in 1551.—The Ladies' Home Journal.

Never Disappointed.

There is a rest of the soul in going bravely about our business in the face of difficult or challenging conditions. While we weary ourselves with sterile anxieties and the fretful criticism of social and political conditions, harvests are being gathered, and the ministrant seasons pursue their blessed and appointed courses. A confidence which looks for its wages or its dividends to seedtime and harvest and brotherly interchange of effort for the satisfaction of human need is never disappointed.—G. G. A., in the Congregationalist.

126,000 Miles of Cloth for Cement Sacks

To keep cement moving from the mills to the many building jobs always under way, cement manufacturers require an astonishing quantity of sacks.

This year the industry has considerably more than 225,000,000 sacks. These represent enough cotton cloth to make a skirt for every woman and girl in the United States—126,000 miles of 30-inch fabric. Even a moderate sized mill which ships say 1,000,000 barrels a year must have 2,000,000 or so sacks.

When a customer returns a sack he gets credit for it, if it is usable or repairable. The convenient returnable sack means that each plant has to have large departments where men and women sew, sort, clean and count sacks continuously. This work alone costs the industry nearly $1,250,000 a year.

And cement manufacturers keep increasing their sack inventories so that they can ship promptly. Last year they purchased a total of more than 100,000,000 new cotton sacks. For replacements alone over 50,000,000 were needed; for increased supplies over 30,000,000. In addition over 18,000,000 paper bags were used representing 7,000,000 pounds of paper.

This problem of containers causes a large and steadily growing investment by the portland cement industry.

THIS paper has a plan which we think will be helpful and also save expense to your organization. Postal cards cost one cent each, and in addition to the cost of printing it takes a great deal of your time to address these cards for mailing. Why not advertise your meetings in the newspaper like sample advertisement below? This advertisement you can insert in this paper for $1.00 for one issue. Oftentimes you cannot reach your members through the mail because the time is too short. With the newspaper you can reach them the same night. Everybody reads it and they would look for these advertisements.

We think this plan will save you money, and we are sure it will save you a great deal of labor. If the organizations in this city join this plan it will be a great success and it will relieve all the secretaries of a great deal of work. Won't you bring this matter before your association and have some action taken?

LESSENED ON NEWEST LINERS

The Albert Ballin, first of two new ships for the Hamburg-American Line, soon to make her maiden voyage to New York, and the first de luxe liner to be put on the seas by Germany since the war. At top, right, is a diagram of the stabilizing device which will minimize rolling on the Albert Ballin. Above, left—Captain Thomas Kier.

Americans soon will see the first trans-Atlantic liner of the de luxe type that Germany has put on the seas since the war.

The Albert Ballin, an oil-burning steamer of 22,000 gross tons, is now being finished for the Hamburg-American Line and is due to sail from Hamburg for New York on July 24. The ship has been named after Albert Ballin, late Director General of the Hamburg-American Line, whose genius was largely responsible for the phenomenal growth of that Company prior to the war and the development of what was then the largest merchant fleet in the world.

The new vessel will be joined in the year by a sister ship, the Deutschland, which is now under construction, and both will sail in joint service with the United American Lines' steamers Resolute and Reliance between New York, Plymouth, Cherbourg and Hamburg.

These latest additions to trans-Atlantic travel facilities are from the famous Blohm & Voss shipyard at Hamburg, builders of the three largest vessels in the world, the former Bismark, Imperator and Vaterland. They are said to embody the last word in luxury, including gymnasium, electric baths, massage room, winter garden, veranda, cafe, grill room and library.

A notable feature of the new ships is a stabilizing device which combines two existing devices, the anti-rolling tank and the hull bulge, in such a way as to minimize rolling. The Albert Ballin will be the first liner to have this system installed, although it has already been in successful use on naval craft.

The Albert Ballin and Deutschland are 600 feet long, 72 feet wide, and each has a passenger capacity of 250 first class, 340 second class, and 1,000 third class.

Captain Thomas Kier, who was Commander of the Imperator before the war, has recently been made Commodore of the Hamburg-American fleet and will be Commander of the Albert Ballin. Her first sailing from New York is scheduled for July 26th.

How Suburbanites of Dayton Get Library Books

Miss Electra Doren, chief librarian at Dayton, Ohio, conceived the idea of carrying books to readers who could not conveniently patronize the library, and her "rolling library," consisting of a truck with shelving for 600 volumes and 104 current periodicals, has proved a great boon to suburban dwellers. The truck canvasses a different section of the suburbs every day. The plan is economical, too, in that it is saving the construction of branch libraries. The photograph shows Miss Doren standing at the rear of the truck.

THE ONLY "SURE THING" IN THE INVESTMENT FIELD

The Advice of Honest Men Who Know, and Willingness to Be Content With Reasonable Return, Declared Only Safe Road to Assured Income.

"Success in life depends upon the investments made of talents and time," says an article on investing prepared by the Committee on Public Education of the American Bankers Association. "Future return will be gain or loss, according to these investments. That is a law of life which controls investment of money, just as it controls investment of talents."
The article, which is particularly timely in these days when
so many are being robbed by fake investments, continues:

In the business sense, the word investment relates to the use of money
in acquiring ownership of property.
Ownership may represent entire possession of property as of a home;
partial ownership as holding stock in
a corporation; or conditional ownership as in the case of buying a mortgage or a bond. When a person makes an investment in bonds, he is really
loaning his money to the government or corporation issuing them. He will receive the interest which they earn
as long as he owns them, or until they are paid off.

Ownership of great corporations is vested in individuals who have invested money in their stock or bonds.
Many people regard the ownership of the United States Steel Corporation,
for example, as differing from the
ownership of, say, a small workshop.
Yet investors in shares of Steel Corporation stock are entitled to the same rights, under the law, as the owner of the workshop. In the corporation, the owners hold certificates of stock as evidence of their investment, whereas
the owner of the little workshop holds
a deed as title to his land.

Capitalistic Laws Protect Investors
Because the laws stand for the equal protection of all investors, it is possible and profitable to make good investments. It gives an incentive to work hard and to invest. The person who wishes to invest must first work
and accumulate funds with which to do so.

Bonds are always secured by mortgages on the lands, buildings or other property of the corporation for which the money has been used. When a bond matures the money must be re-
paid to the owner of the bond.

All investors are a part of a great financial system which gathers up and
puts to work the wealth of the country for the mutual benefit, prosperity,
and well-being of all. In America, it is possible for any one who is willing to pay the price of self-denial and hard work, to be an investor. Good investments made in early life by saving
small sums as may be possible, lay
the foundation for providing the comforts of later years, when it is harder to earn a livelihood and when
poverty often becomes the condition
of those who have not practiced
 thrift in youth.

It is not wise for those without experience to undertake to make investments of their money without guidance by those who know. Many companies are constantly being organized

to promote unsound schemes, referred to as "wild-cat." There are always solicitors ready to relieve people of their savings by the promise of big returns. The lure of great wealth is always a temptation by which thousands of thrifty people are deprived
of hard-earned savings every year.
Widows and orphans who have inherited money are frequently sought
and made the targets of these fake-
stock salesmen. Misery and suffering
are the usual results.

Greed Defeats Safety

Many people with small means also lose money because they insist on a high rate of interest on their investments. Safety of principal should be considered above large returns in interest or dividends. Small investors
should never buy high-rate, speculative investments, in which there is a great risk, but should stick to those which pay a fair rate and which are known to be safe.

To know whether an investment is worth buying the investor should go to a banker, or a successful business man in whom he has confidence, get his opinion and act in accordance with
it. In all probability this will mean
the difference between successful investment and total loss of his money.

The banker deals with investments
every day and desires to give all the help and information he can, and the business man has learned by experience the need of caution and careful judgment. They believe one should have a clear understanding of an investment before it is purchased. They know the need for avoiding stock
promotion schemes and get-rich-quick propositions which in many cases
have brought poverty and suffering.
While many states have passed laws
aimed to protect the public against promoters of fake investments, thousands of people annually fall victims
to their wiles, because they fail to seek advice of those experienced in making investments.

Good advice and temperate expectations mark the only road to safe
investment and an assured income.
There is no other certain way.

This Bird Is Fat.

Young albatrosses are so laden with their own fat that one of them may go five months without taking any nourishment, says the American Forestry Magazine. This is likewise true
of young penguins and other sea fowl.

The Old Year and New.

Different nations begin the year at different times. The Romans started it with March 1, the Macedonians in September, the Aztecs on February 23, the Athenians in June and the Persians on August 11.

Labor and Rest Essential.

Labor endears rest; and both to-

proper enjoyment of human existence.

STATE PLANS ROAD MARK- ING SYSTEM

The official marking system which is designed to give Illinois the best marked highways in the world, will be completed in its enlarged form
within the next 30 or 40 days it was announced by the Division of Highways here today.

The new system which has been under consideration for several months, was decided upon at a conference of Governor Small, Director
of Public Works and Buildings, C.
K. Miller, State Superintendent of Highway Frank T. Sheets, State Highway Engineer Clifford Older
and other engineers of the Division of High ways. It was decided that the new system with certain enlargements and alterations which were settled upon at the conference
with the Governor, should be completed within the next 30 or 40
days.

Maintain Detours.

Another important decision reached was that beginning with the traffic season next spring detours would be completely marked and maintained by the State. All State bond in-sue routes neither completed nor
under contract will have installed
upon the temporary route markings
guiding the traveling public over the best routes which will follow as closely as possible the final route of the pavement. These routes will be maintained under authority of the state highways act.

Standard traffic warning signs
consisting of boards of uniform size, 24 in by 42 in. will be erected at all points on the highway at which the attention of the driver, either for guidance or safety should be arrested.

The signs will establish the three
degrees of safety and convenience.

The sign bearing the word "Look"
will convey to the motorist that he should proceed with proper care and alertness past the point indicated.
These signs are to be erected at cross-
roads, side roads and sharp curves.

"Danger" signs will be in red. All other inscriptions will be in black.
"Danger" signs will be placed only
at railroad crossings, very sharp
curves and other points of imminent
danger. The policy of the Highway Division in the use of the "danger"
sign is worthy of note. Frank T.
Sheets, Superintendent of Highways
explained that the danger sign would appear at comparatively few points
and only at points on the road there
going is more than ordinarily hazardous. "The department is opposed to placing danger signs promiscu-
ously along the highways because it leads to a reckless disregard for all
signs where there is a real danger,"
said Mr. Sheets.

Route Marking.

The route marking will consist of an outline of the state in which will be placed the route number. At all main cross-roads the mileage to the northern and eastern terminus of the route will be indicated on the sign
in small red figures. The outline of the state the route number and the mileage will also be penciled on the back of all warning signs. In addition the outline of the state and the route number will be painted on poles at frequent intervals so that the traveler will always have one of the standard signs in view.

Where continuous care for a certain distance is necessary, because of railroad crossings, curves, narrow
bridges, schools etc., "Caution Zones" have been established. These zones will be marked with a board
lettered "Caution Zone" and distinguished by a border of diagonal
black and white stripes.

Cities and Villages.

The routes thru the cities and villages will be marked with a metal sign mounted upon a post and bearing the same inscription as the highway signs. Where there is a right or left turn an arrow will indicate the direction. Work of installing these metal signs has already started and they are being put up as rapidly as they can be manufactured and permits for their erection secured. In order to give the public immediate advantage of the system temporary
signs are being placed on the poles
along the routes.

In addition to the mileage indicated from the north and east terminus
of the routes, signs showing the mileage to the main points ahead will be placed at the limits of cities. At the center of each city and village there will be signs showing the routes and
distance to main points so that travelers may know the mileage and readily pick up the state routes without the use of a map. However the department will publish a map showing all routes, villages and cities
and locating the paved and unpaved
routes. This map will be put out
during the coming winter and care
will be taken to have it plainer and more convenient than the average road guide.

The marking of the new system
has been installed in some places and the work will now be rushed to completion.

Many special signs will be installed. All signs at railway crossings will bear the name of the railroad and at a bridge over important streams the name of the stream will be given.

At the entrance to cities and villages will be signs giving the name of the city or village and its population.
At the intersection of roads leading to important points the signs will indicate the direction and mileage.

Highway officials declare that the system of marking has been worked out carefully to the end that it may
give the greatest service to the public in safety and convenience.

Pound of Sugar Costs More Than Some Jewels

Sugars that cost from $75 to $375 per pound, because of the excessive care required to make them, are used in scientific laboratories. One is useful in detecting typhoid germs, as these tiny organisms
multiply rapidly when feeding on it. A sugar, made from corn cobs, brings $120
per pound, while another, manufactured
from scraps left over in making vegetable battons, sells for $140.

Sir Walter Raleigh's First Pipe Shown in London

Sir Walter Raleigh's first pipe with which he is believed to have introduced tobacco smoking in England, has recently been found in London. Made by Ameri-

Soviet Picture Cars Draw Interest of Peasants

By sending trains of picture cars into
the rural districts, the Russian government is attempting to educate in the principles of communism more than 100,- 000,000 people who, heretofore, have shown little or no interest in politics.
Painted on the sides of the railroad cars
by the nation's most skilled artists, are propaganda and educational designs illustrating the communist doctrines. In trying to "sell" this form of government
to the peasants, the Soviets probably have become the world's largest advertisers.

Fifteen Years Added To Span Of Life in Past Fifty

Figures have been compiled showing that the average length of life for inhabitants of the United States has increased almost 15 years in the past 53.
In 1870, the average was 41 years, while now it is almost 56. By 1950, the span
will have reached the biblical threescore
and ten, provided the present high standards of civilization and correct living are maintained, a scientist has predicted. In the 16th century the ordinary term of life was between 18 and 20 years, and
about 1800, it was still less than 25 years.
At the end of the 19th century, it ranged between 45 and 48 years.

Poultry Feeder and Rat Trap

A combination rat trap and dry-mast
feeder is a rather novel addition to the poultry house. The feeder is a long box,
1 ft. high and 1 ft. wide, with a sloped
slatted top, through which the hens put their heads to eat during the day. To convert this into a rat trap, a 4-in. hole
was bored in the end of the hopper, a short length of 4-in. stovepipe fastened in the hole, and a bag tied over the other end of the pipe and spread out on the ground. A heavy board cover was hinged to the feed
box; this was kept open by means of a hook during the day, but the hook was released, and a small prop with a string attached to it used at night. The string led away to a distant window so that the poultryman could pull it without entering
the poultry house and disturbing the rats.
A yank at the string let the cover drop and trapped the rats inside. Then, by beating

on the cover with a stick, the rats were made to run through the hole, down the pipe, and into the bag, where a few blows
killed them. As long as the hens sit from the feeder the rats never seemed suspicious.

When examining the storage battery of a car to see if any water is needed, do not simply test one cell; examine them all. One of the cells may be cracked, and will require water often than the others. It is a good idea to examine a storage battery
once every two weeks. In adding distilled water to the battery, always bring the level of the electrolyte 1/4 in. above the top of the plates.

UNITED STATES FOREIGN TRADE

It aggregates $185,789,162,000 since the adoption of the Constitution, and 40%
of it has occurred in the 9 years since the beginning of the war. Development of the manufacturing industry—big factor in growth of recent years.

The foreign trade of the United States in the 9 years since the beginning of the war is three-fourths
as much as in the 125 years preceding the war. Statements compiled by the Trade Record of the National City Bank of New York
show that the foreign trade of the United States in the 9 years from the close of the fiscal year 1914 to the end of the fiscal year 1923 was $77,000,000,000, against $109,000,000,- 000 in 125 years from the adoption of the Constitution to the end of 1914. Imports in the 9 years since the beginning of the war to the end of the fiscal year 1923
are $28,000,000,000 against $50,000,- 000,000 in the 125 years preceding the war, and exports since 1914
are $49,000,000,000 against $59,000,- 000,000 in the pre-war period. The excess of exports over imports in
the 9 years since the beginning of the war is $21,000,000,000, against an excess of but $9,000,000,000 in the 125 years prior to the war.

The fact that the excess of exports in the 9 years since the beginning of the war is more than double the excess in the 125

years preceding the war is due,
says the Trade Record, to the fact
that our "favorable trade balance,"
as the excess of exports is sometimes called, only began in the closing quarter of the nineteenth century when the producing and exporting power of the Mississippi Valley was developed by the extension of plentiful transportation facilities to that area. Prior to 1875 imports usually exceeded exports, but with the increase in transportation facilities and development of production in the interior of the country exports
began in 1876 to exceed imports
and have continued to the present time. In the 86 years from 1789 to the end of 1875 there were only 16 occasions in which exports equaled or exceeded imports. In the 48 years since 1875
there have been but three occasions in which exports failed to exceed imports. In 1876 the excess of exports was $30,000,000, in 1880
$168,000,000, in 1900 $544,000,000, in 1914 $471,000,000, jumping, with the big demands of the war to over $1,000,000,000 in the fiscal year 1915,
and $2,400,000,000 in the fiscal year 1919. With the fall off in the world demand for our natural
products, our exports dropped
from the high record mark of $2,- 018,746,000 in the fiscal year 1920 to

$3,771,182,000 in the fiscal year 1922,
but advanced about $200,000,000 in
the fiscal year 1923, making the total exports of the fiscal year just ended $3,965,967,000, or 50% greater than the highest pre-war year, 1913. The excess of exports in 1921 was $2,862,000,000, in 1922 $1,- 163,000,000 and in 1923, owing to unusually large imports, was but $176,965,000.

Imports since the close of the war have shown a much less percentage of fall than did exports,
by reason of the demands of our
manufacturers for foreign manufacturing material, and the total
imports for 1923 are $3,789,000,000,
against $5,238,000,000 in the high
record year 1920, and are more than double the imports of any pre-war year. Imports of raw material for use in manufacturing in the fiscal year 1923 are in round
terms $1,500,000,000 against $635,- 000,000 in 1913, or 2 1/4 times as much in 1923 as in the highest pre-war year.

Meantime the exports of manufactures have made a similar
growth, the total exports of finished manufactures in the fiscal year 1923 standing at approximately $1,400,000,000 against $776,- 000,000 in the highest pre-war year.
Our foreign trade in the fiscal year 1923 exceeds that of 1922 by more than a billion dollars and is nearly double that of the year preceding the war.
